4 THINGS TO KNOW

Astronomers reveal first image of a black hole

"Science fiction has become science fact," said co-discoverer Avery Broderick.

Black hole

EVENT HORIZON TELESCOPE COLLABORATION

Scientists on Wednesday revealed the first image ever made of a black hole, depicting a fiery ring of gravity-twisted light swirling around the edge of the abyss.

The picture, assembled from data gathered by eight radio telescopes around the world, shows the hot, shadowy lip of a supermassive black hole, one of the light-sucking monsters of the universe theorized by Einstein more than a century ago and confirmed by observations for decades. It is along this edge that light bends around itself in a cosmic funhouse effect.

"We have seen what we thought was unseeable. We have seen and taken a picture of a black hole," Sheperd Doeleman of Harvard, leader of a team of about 200 scientists from 20 countries, announced as the colorized orange-and-black picture was unveiled.

University of Waterloo physicist Avery Broderick, a co-discoverer, declared: "Science fiction has become science fact."

In fact, Jessica Dempsey, a co-discoverer and deputy director of the East Asian Observatory in Hawaii, said the fiery circle reminded her of the flaming Eye of Sauron from the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy.

Unlike smaller black holes that come from collapsed stars, supermassive black holes are mysterious in origin. Situated at the center of most galaxies, including ours, they are so dense that nothing, not even light, can escape their gravitational pull. This one's "event horizon" — the precipice, or point of no return, where light and matter begin to fall inexorably into the hole — is as big as our entire solar system.

Three years ago, scientists using an extraordinarily sensitive observing system heard the sound of two much smaller black holes merging to create a gravitational wave, as Albert Einstein predicted. The new image, published in the Astrophysical Journal Letters and announced around the world, adds light to that sound.

Outside scientists suggested the achievement could be worthy of a Nobel Prize, just like the gravitational wave discovery.

"I think it looks very convincing," said Andrea Ghez, director of the UCLA Galactic Center Group, who wasn't part of the discovery team.

The image helps confirm Einstein's general theory of relativity. Einstein a century ago even predicted the symmetrical shape that scientists just found.

The picture was made with equipment that detects wavelengths that can't be seen by the human eye, so astronomers added color to convey the ferocious heat of the gas and dust, glowing at a temperature of perhaps millions of degrees. But if a person were to somehow get close to this black hole, it might not look quite like that, astronomers said.

The black hole is about six billion times the mass of our sun and is in a galaxy called M87 that is about 53 million light-years from Earth. One light-year is 5.9 trillion miles, or 9.5 trillion kilometers.

Black holes are the "most extreme environment in the known universe," Broderick said, a violent, churning place of "gravity run amok."

"We have seen what we thought was unseeable. We have seen and taken a picture of a black hole."
Sheperd Doeleman, a Harvard scientist

While much of the matter around a black hole gets sucked into the vortex, never to be seen again, the new picture captures gas and dust that are lucky to be circling just far enough to be safe and to be seen millions of years later on Earth.

A black hole's gravity creates a funhouse effect where you can see light from both behind the black hole and behind you as the light curves and circles around the black hole.

Despite decades of study, there are a few people who deny black holes exist, and this work shows that they do, said Boston University astronomer professor Alan Marscher, a co-discoverer.

The project cost $50 million to $60 million, with $28 million of that coming from the National Science Foundation. The same team has gathered even more data on a black hole in the center of our galaxy, but scientists said the object is so jumpy they don't have a good picture yet.

Myth says a black hole would rip you apart, but scientists said that because of the particular forces exerted by an object as big as the one they documented, someone could fall into it and not be torn to pieces. But the person would never be heard from or seen again.

Black holes are "like the walls of a prison. Once you cross it, you will never be able to get out and you will never be able to communicate," said astronomer Avi Loeb, who is director of the Black Hole Initiative at Harvard but was not involved in the discovery. ASSOCIATED PRESS

Judge orders former Penn St. president Spanier to jail

2 A judge is giving former Penn State president Graham Spanier three weeks to report to jail and start serving a sentence imposed over his handling of a complaint about Jerry Sandusky showering with a boy. Court officials on Wednesday released an order from Judge John Boccabella that says Spanier can do his time in the jail near his home in State College if county jail wardens approve. Spanier has remained out on bail after his 2017 conviction for misdemeanor child endangerment. Spanier was forced out as university president in 2011, after Sandusky was charged with child molestation.The 70-year-old Spanier was sentenced to a minimum of two months in jail and two months of house arrest. The judge is also giving his approval to Spanier's participation in a work-release program. ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota arrests 58 in child sex sting operation

3 Minnesota authorities arrested 58 people accused of attempting to solicit children for sex or for trafficking in a sting operation staged during the NCAA Final Four basketball tournament, state authorities said on Wednesday. The sting, which resulted in the rescue of 28 victims, including one minor, occurred Friday through Monday as undercover agents posed as minors or as sex buyers and chatted with suspects on social media platforms. Investigators arrested the suspects as they arrived at an arranged meeting place for an encounter, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety said in a statement. The people arrested were not part of a single sex-trafficking ring, Jill Oliveira, a spokeswoman for the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension with the Department of Public Safety, said. REUTERS

EU offers British PM May Brexit pause to Oct. 31

4 European Union leaders agreed to grant British Prime Minister Theresa May a new Brexit deadline of Oct. 31, officials said, after French President Emmanuel Macron opposed efforts to give her another year. "A Brexit extension until 31 October is sensible since it gives time to UK to finally choose its way," Maltese Prime Minister Joseph Muscat tweeted, adding that a summit in June would let EU leaders "take stock of the situation." Summit chair Donald Tusk he went to brief May on the outcome and seek her necessary agreement to a final deal. The late-night agreement means Britain will not crash out of the bloc on Friday and gives May more than the three months she had asked for to build a parliamentary majority behind the withdrawal treaty she negotiated with the EU last year. Why Aren't Doctors Telling Knee Arthritis Sufferers About These Two Often Successful Treatments?

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

NYC -If you suffer with knee arthritis pan, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications. With minimal or no results

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis a lot of knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers. Patients travel from all over the tai-state to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation - the good and the bad....

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid."

Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during viscosupplementaiton treatments... doctors precisely inject directly into the knee joint.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the procedure is slightly off, the formula will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NYC Pain MD use advanced digital imaging so they visually guide the injection accurately into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that performing joint injections without imaging miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have had prior viscosupplementation without this special digital imaging without good results - this may be the exact reason why.

That's why NYC Pain MD even takes it one step further. They do not just use one form of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation "medicines" also come in several different formulas.

Just like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. While many doctors only use one formula, the experts at NYC Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what the best one is for you.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

#2 Radiofrequency Neurotomy

This treatment is called, "Radiofrequncy Neurotomy." RF for short

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "Genicular nerves."

Radiofrequncy waves are delivered to the Genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, Genicular Neurotomy (GRF) is performed for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1, 4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post-procedure adverse event during the follow-up period. RF neurotomy of Genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee OA pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication, physical rehab or viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF may be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

But - RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure may be the only thing that helps and give you after surgery relief.

Advanced Imaging Allows Doctors To Pin-Point Treatments And Relieve Knee Arthritis Pain

Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers? Research shows joint injections done without advanced imaging misses the joint about 30% of the time. Now doctors can put lubricating fluid directly into the arthritis joint that may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis t screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like to schedule a screening, just call 877-380-8537.

The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there absolutely no obligation.

More good news: for qualified candidates, insurances and Medicare often cover these treatments.

Trump says only one person is in charge of immigration: Him

Trump named Kevin McAleenan to replace Kirstjen Nielsen as Homeland secretary.

President Donald Trump says there's only one person in charge of his immigration policy: Him.

Asked by reporters Wednesday whether he had considered tapping his influential aide, Stephen Miller, to lead the Department of Homeland Security given Miller's focus on the issue, Trump was ready with praise — but not a promotion.

"Stephen is an excellent guy. He's wonderful person. ... He's a brilliant man," Trump said as he departed for Texas. But "frankly, there's only one person that's running it," Trump said. "You know who that is? It's me."

"... frankly, there's only one person that's running it. You know who that is? It's me."
President Trump

Trump on Sunday announced that Kevin McAleenan, the commissioner of United States Customs and Border Protection, would be taking over as acting Homeland Security secretary in the wake of Kirstjen Nielsen's sudden departure.

Asked whether he was considering nominating McAleenan as his permanent secretary, Trump said, "Could happen."

"We have others, but right now he's the man," said Trump.

Trump continued his focus on immigration during his Texas visit, where he turned a pre-fundraiser roundtable with supporters in San Antonio, Texas, into a forum for venting about illegal immigration, human trafficking and safety concerns on the border.

During the session, Trump announced he would be directing additional members of the military to the border and contended that residents of border states are living in tremendous danger and that nobody has any idea how bad the problem is. Some ranchers, he claimed, had told him they were finding scores of dead bodies on their land.

"They're dying on their fields, all over," he said. "They go over, they find bodies lying over the field, including many pregnant women. Many pregnant women. They give it a little water, go out and start walking. Walk to Dallas and Dallas is 250 miles away."

The comments came a day after Trump said he was not looking to revive the much-criticized practice of separating migrant children from their families at the southern border, as he has privately threatened, amid bipartisan pushback to his shake-up at Homeland Security. At the same time, he suggested the policy had worked to deter migrants from coming into the U.S., although he offered no evidence to support his position.

Last summer the administration separated more than 2,500 children from their families before international outrage forced Trump to halt the practice and a judge ordered them reunited.

"We're not looking to do that," Trump told reporters Tuesday before meeting with Egypt's president at the White House. But he also noted: "Once you don't have it, that's why you see many more people coming. They're coming like it's a picnic, because let's go to Disneyland."

The potential reinstatement of one of the most divisive practices of Trump's tenure was just one aspect of the upheaval at the Department of Homeland Security this week that culminated with Nielsen's resignation. Acting Deputy Secretary Claire Grady, a 28-year civil servant, technically next in line for secretary, was forced to resign Tuesday to make room for Trump's pick to replace Nielsen, according to two people familiar with the decision.

Her practice specializes in vulvar and vaginal disorders including warts, STD's, UTI's, Fibroids, and vaginal infections. She provides routine gynecological care and treatment including rejuvenation procedures, colposcopy, uterine polypectomy, and fertility evaluations.

Often we shy away from asking the uncomfortable questions that we all wonder about from time to time. Questions and curiosities that can keep our minds preoccupied and distracted, or even affect our health by avoiding these topics completely. I understand this common fear and worry that many of us share which is why my approach in patient care is always an authentic and individualized experience, treating the patient first as a translator of sorts, helping me investigate the actual symptoms of their concerns.

Without this bond, we are unable to work together to provide long lasting results that treat each issue with patience and understanding. Whether our patients are coming in for a consultation, testing, evaluations, or treatment plans we seek to create an environment that is purely resourceful and educational for our patients to build a network of long and strong healthy lives. We provide a variety of expert knowledge in rejuvenation procedures and preventative solutions for concerns like endometriosis and fibroid that can be very painful and lead to other medical issues if not treated or properly monitored right away. If you suspect any concern or curious about any form of abnormality where it be hormonal, physical, or related to a specific stage in your life we encourage you to reach out and speak to one us directly as well as set up an appointment for thorough evaluation.

My biggest message to the majority of my patients when they come in, is to be in tune with their bodies allowing us both to assess what areas in both personal life and your external life such as social or work can supplement each other and contribute to the overall state of your health.

It's important to stay up to date and review all kinds of testing and treatment plans, not just submit to an instant gratification form of treatment. Many fear the unknown and replace fear with assumptions, self diagnosing and self medicating. If we reduce the fear and simplify the process, we become closer to our bodies and realize that our bodies are not as foreign as we make it out to be.

We truly believe that caring starts with advanced resources and technologies that can give us the opportunity to pin point the issue and replenish a person's health and overall experience as a woman. Especially when it comes to a woman's sexual experience, we all deserve a healthy and safe life when it comes to our intimate expressions.

This is also why we service MonaLisa Touch which is a low energy electric therapy allowing women to have both functional and cosmetic alterations to their vagina. New York City orders mandatory vaccines for some amid measles outbreak

"This is an unusual action," Mayor de Blasio acknowledged, "and it's because of the sheer extent of the crisis."

Health officials Tuesday ordered nearly everyone in a heavily Orthodox Jewish New York City neighborhood to be vaccinated for measles or face fines, reviving a public-health strategy that experts say hasn't been used in the U.S. in recent memory.

The emergency order came as the city, a suburban New York county and some other parts of the nation grapple with a spurt in a disease the U.S. declared eradicated almost two decades ago.

"This is an unusual action," New York Mayor Bill de Blasio acknowledged, "and it's because of the sheer extent of the crisis."

Meanwhile, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention elevated its response to measles, establishing a larger team to focus on outbreaks that have sickened 465 people nationwide this year — the second-greatest number of cases reported in the U.S. since measles was eliminated domestically in 2000.

The nation's biggest city is in the midst of its biggest measles outbreak since 1991, with 285 cases diagnosed since last fall — compared to two in all of 2017, officials said. They blamed the spike partly on anti-vaccine campaigns spreading misinformation that immunizations are dangerous.

News of the order got a mixed reaction among Orthodox Jews in Williamsburg, the Brooklyn neighborhood affected by the order. Some residents — even those who support vaccination — said they felt uncomfortable about the city pushing inoculations on people who don't want them.

Others remain convinced, against expert assurances, that vaccines are unsafe.

"It's true that a lot of people have measles, and measles are not a very good thing, said resident Aron Braver, but he thinks the vaccine is "also not a very good thing."

"And it's everybody's option to do what he wants. What he decides," Braver added.

The New York Civil Liberties Union also questioned the city's move.

Executive director Donna Lieberman called it "an extreme measure" that "raises civil liberties concerns about forced medical treatment."

De Blasio, a Democrat, said officials were confident the order would withstand legal scrutiny.

18K

The city believes an estimated 1,800 children in the neighborhood hadn't been immunized as of December.

Rockland County, north of the city, has already faced legal action over its efforts to contain measles: an emergency order that would ban children from public places unless they've been immunized. A court halted it last week, but County Executive Ed Day said Tuesday he planned to appeal.

"If this is not an emergency, what is?" asked Day, a Republican. His county, which has sizeable Orthodox Jewish communities with close ties to Brooklyn, has logged 168 measles cases since last fall.

Pedestrians walk near the Yeshiva Kehilath Yakov School in the South Williamsburg neighborhood. GETTY IMAGES

He said Rockland officials are crafting a new order designed to isolate people exposed to measles.

New York City's order applies to unvaccinated people who live, work or go to school in four ZIP codes, with some exceptions, such as for children under 6 months old.

Officials said they would help people arrange to get shots but were prepared to fine them as much as $1,000 if they refused.

The measure comes a day after the city ordered Orthodox Jewish schools and day care programs in Williamsburg to exclude unvaccinated students from classes during the outbreak or risk being closed down.

The city believes an estimated 1,800 children in the neighborhood hadn't been immunized as of December.

At Yeshiva Kehilath Yakov school, Rabbi David Oberlander said administrators took pains to make sure children with measles — some 20 cases in recent months — weren't in class.

"We try to control our school, and we really strive to comply 100 percent with the Department of Health," he said. "But we don't control the parents, and we don't intend to control the parents."

U.S. cities have fined residents before for not being vaccinated, but "not in our modern history," said Lawrence Gostin, a Georgetown Law professor focused on public health law.

The U.S. Supreme Court upheld such an order in a 1905 case involving smallpox vaccinations in Cambridge, Massachusetts. But over time, school-vaccination requirements — which the high court upheld in 1922 — became the centerpiece of public health officials' strategies to fight measles, mumps and other communicable diseases.

"There is a very strong anti-vaccination propaganda movement in these communities, and they're very effective."
Blima Marcus, nurse practitioner

Overall vaccination rates remain high, but the percentage of kids under 2 who haven't gotten their shots is growing, according to the Centers for Disease Control. The CDC attributes the trend partly to lack of health insurance.

GETTY IMAGES

But some experts also point to an "anti-vax" viewpoint that has gained some traction in recent years, helped by social media.

"I think it's a sign of the impact of vaccine denialism, where we're now in a place where cities feel like they need to up the ante" with vaccination orders, says Scott Burris, a public health law professor at Temple University's Beasley School of Law.

In Brooklyn and Rockland County, anti-vaccination advocates have been circulating a 40-page booklet around Orthodox Jewish enclaves. It lays out numerous anti-vaccine arguments that have been debunked by scientific studies, such as a claim that measles, mumps and rubella vaccinations increase the risk of autism.

"There is a very strong anti-vaccination propaganda movement in these communities, and they're very effective," said Blima Marcus, a nurse practitioner who lives in Brooklyn. She and fellow volunteers from the Orthodox Jewish Nurses Association have been holding workshops to reassure mothers that the vaccine is safe and effective.

A query was sent to two email addresses listed as contacts in the booklet.

Spread through coughs and sneezes, measles is highly contagious and can cause serious health problems, including pneumonia and brain swelling that can lead to seizures, deafness or intellectual disability. Deaths are rare in the U.S., but measles killed 110,000 people globally in 2017.

The CDC recommends that all children get two doses of measles vaccine. It says the vaccine is 97 percent effective.

The National Institutes of Health says reports of serious reactions to vaccines are rare: about one in every 100,000 vaccinations. ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 1 dead, 17 injured in North Carolina gas explosion

The explosion was triggered when a contractor hit a 2-inch gas line.

A gas explosion that partially collapsed a North Carolina building and set it ablaze Wednesday morning killed one person and injured more than a dozen others, police said.

Police cars blocked the streets near the explosion in downtown Durham and a thick, acrid smoke hung over the shopping district created from remodeled tobacco warehouses. At least two ladder trucks sprayed blasts of water into the smoldering rubble nearly two hours after the explosion.

Durham Police Department spokesman Wil Glenn said a contractor boring under a sidewalk hit a 2-inch gas line, triggering the explosion. One person was killed and 15 were taken to area hospitals, Glenn said at a news conference.

A Durham firefighter and a Dominion Energy employee were among the injured, police spokeswoman Kammie Michael said in a news release. Information on their conditions was not available.

Jim Rogalski, 58, was working in his office across the street from the destroyed building when the explosion blew out the windows. At least four people working in cubicles along those windows suffered deep cuts, bloody head wounds and other injuries, he said.

"There was lots of screaming," Rogalski said. "It was pretty frantic there for a little bit until help showed up."

Rogalski was seated one row away from the windows and wasn't hurt.

"It was terrifying," he said. "The whole building shook. Things started falling — ceiling tiles, and structure and glass and debris. Lots and lots of dust. It was tough to see beyond 20 feet or so."

The explosion came about 15 minutes after the office's human resources manager sent an email warning that the city's fire department was investigating the smell of gas and that workers shouldn't leave the building through the front door, he said as a friend gave him a ride home to Chapel Hill. Rogalski said he was forced to abandon his car in a nearby parking deck because authorities worried the blast may have weakened the structure.

Blocks away, the blast shattered windows and blew at least one door off its hinges in the Brightleaf shopping district. Ed Rains was on a nearby street and couldn't see the blast but heard it. "I thought someone had dropped a dumpster on the street," he said.

Tracy Telenko was at his desk in his third-floor office when he heard the explosion and saw black smoke billowing up.

"My first thought, because there was construction going on around my building, was something fell, somebody doing construction dropped something," he said.

At nearby Durham School of the Arts, students were evacuated and classes dismissed for the day. Al Donaldson, a teacher, was walking through a hallway in a building about two blocks from the blast when he heard a loud noise, which concerned faculty and students.

"We didn't know the origin at the time," he said. "I was in the hallway, so I didn't so much feel it shake as experiencing a jarring sound."

The collapsed building is occupied by Prescient Co., which said in July 2017 that it was moving its headquarters from Arvada, Colorado, and expected to employ about 60 executives, engineering and sales workers in Durham. The company uses specialized software to design and build precise materials that allow builders to assemble multi-story apartments, hotels and other commercial buildings faster and cheaper.

‘Life-threatening’ blizzard bears down on north-central US

A powerful April blizzard threatened the north-central part of the United States on Wednesday, as it pushed east across the Rockies and into the Plains states, raising the threat of more flooding in areas still recovering from a deluge last month.

Warm spring temperatures will give way to heavy snow, gale-force winds and life-threatening conditions across a swath of the central United States running from Colorado to Minnesota over the next two days, the National Weather Service said.

“This is potentially a life-threatening storm,” said Patrick Burke, a meteorologist with the NWS Weather Prediction Center in Maryland.

In March, a late-winter “bomb cyclone” triggered heavy rainfall over the region and combined with melting snow to cause extensive flooding along the Missouri River and its tributaries. The deluge resulted in more than $3 billion in damage to property and crops in Nebraska and Iowa alone.

REUTERS

This week’s storm is bringing huge swings in air temperature to Colorado. Temperatures in the state capital of Denver reached 85 degrees on Tuesday, but dropped down to 35 on Wednesday and were expected to be 21 by nighttime, forecasters said.

The slow-moving storm is set to bring heavy, wet snow across the region. Residents could expect downed trees, widespread power outages and road closures, Burke said. Driving is likely to be treacherous, he said.

Some areas of western Minnesota and southeast South Dakota could see as much as 30 inches of snow.

South Dakota Gov. Kristi Noem on Wednesday closed state government offices in 52 counties under a blizzard warning, according to a statement from her office. Residents were urged to stay home and avoid travel unless necessary.

Two factors may limit the flooding, forecasters said. The ground has thawed in most areas since last month, allowing for better absorption than during the aftermath of the March storm. In addition, precipitation this time is expected to be in the form of snow rather than rain, slowing the runoff process. REUTERS

'New "Hellboy" is darker and more violent' DAVID HARBOUR

Eleven years after the premiere of "Hellboy II: The Golden Army," the demon and antihero returns to movie theaters with a completely revamped saga. This time it is directed by Neil Marshall and stars David Harbour, whom we know as police chief Jim Hopper of the Netflix series "Stranger Things." Harbour chatted with Metro about how much he enjoyed playing Hellboy.

DANIEL CASILLAS MWN

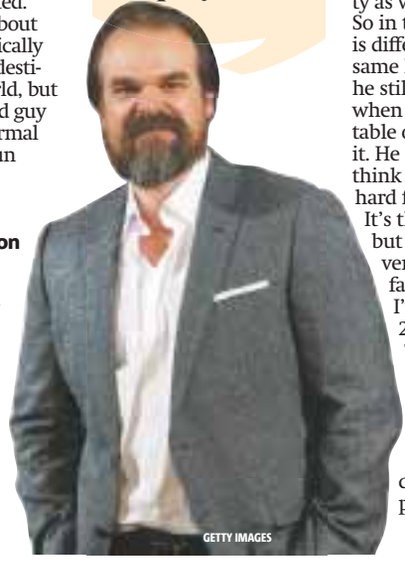
How do you feel about being a superhero?
I feel like this one is cool. I don't feel all superheroes have my back, but this guy is very complicated. He's got issues, he's an outcast, kind of a weirdo. I can't even tell if he is doing the right thing or not, so it's a lot of fun to play him.

It seems that you are a fan of Hellboy.
Yeah! I was a fan of the comics in my 20s, of the graphic novels, also fan of the movies when they came out. And I am still a fan after playing it [laughs]. I really like "Hellboy." I mean, in the comics it's so beautifully drawn and illustrated. The story itself is about a guy who is genetically predetermined or destined to end the world, but just wants to a good guy who solves paranormal crimes. It's just a fun story.

Did you do any physical preparation to play Hellboy?
Yeah! I did a lot of training with [New York City-based trainer] Don Saladino — he is great. We did a lot of working out, a lot of heavy weightlifting and powerlifting. I wanted to get very strong and wanted to feel what that was like. This is not my particular body [points at "Hellboy" image]; that's a prosthetic. But I did want to feel that power, and it was interesting. I think our bodies affect us so much, they affect our mind-set so much. And there is a kind of brutality of living that way, lifting this heavy weight, testosterone. … Chemically that almost happened to me.

Tell us more about the makeup process. Was it difficult?
Yes, it was initially. But then it started to get really fun. Like I started to … fetishize and get really excited about getting into the makeup chair. It started out as three hours in a chair in the morning. It was hard, hellish. And then as the shooting went on I started to miss his face, and in the morning I wouldn't feel complete. So I go in and I put on the face and the whole thing, and I look in the mirror after I was done—and I feel that I was myself again. It was a weird sort of thing. And as the shoot went on, I liked more an more.

He's [Hellboy] got issues, he's an outcast, kind of a weirdo. I can't even tell if he is doing the right thing or not, so it's a lot of fun to play him.



GETTY IMAGES

Why should "Hellboy" fans watch this film?
Because it's "Hellboy!" It is a superfun movie, it's dark, it's violent. Hellboy is younger and kind of more angsty I would say. And it has, of course, differences from the comic. We play with certain relationships, and certain ideas … differently. … If you are fan of the comics, I would say that it is very fun to watch. It's just a really fun movie. If you are fan of "Hellboy," you have go to see it. And even if you are not, if you know nothing about "Hellboy" — it's a fun and exciting movie. I really enjoyed it.

What differences do you see between this new saga and the old one?
For me, the new saga is a bit darker in its color scheme and in tone in general. It is a little bit more violent in terms of the world where Hellboy exists. And also it's a bit younger, it's sort of … not a prequel, but he is younger in his personality as well, like a teenager. So in that way I think it is different. It is still the same Hellboy character; he still uses his humor when he is uncomfortable or when he needs it. He is angry. But I just think he is different, it's hard for me to compare. It's the same character, but it's like seeing two versions. Look, I am a fan of the theater, so I've seen probably 20 productions of "Hamlet" with different Hamlets. And the thing about a character like Hamlet is that it is so big that you can't do it all in one pass, one person.

Metro's picks for Record Store Day 2019

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Wayne Coyne of The Flaming Lips performs onstage at Pitchfork And October Present OctFest 2018. GETTY IMAGES

This Saturday, lines will be forming early in the morning at independent record stores all over the world in order to participate in Record Store Day 2019. Originally started in 2008 as a way to bring in more customers to smaller non-chain stores, the occasion has morphed into a highly anticipated event that sees the release of special, limited-edition vinyl pressings from both obscure and some of the most widely known names in music.

These titles could be both reissues of classic albums that had previously been out of print, brand-new releases, and even kitschy fun releases like the new 3-inch singles being put out by Jack White's Third Man Records. The music nerd's holiday generally picks a famous musician as its "ambassador" and this year Record Store Day has chosen Pearl Jam to take up the mantle.

"Independent record stores are hugely important to me, and have been ever since I was 12 years old," said Pearl Jam lead guitarist Mike McCready in a release. "Before I even really knew what they were — there was a certain feeling of 'this is a dream come true,' and it's a wonderland and there's so much to learn in here… and it's still that way." To mark the occasion, the band will be joining on the fun and releasing an official live release of their 2005 performance at the small Seattle venue Easy Street.

While any music fan will be running the risk of ridicule by releasing their list of picks to the public, we at Metro (yours truly) thought it would be a good idea to run through all of the hundreds of selections available and give you our picks of some of the best releases you can find only on Record Store Day 2019.

Jeff Tweedy — "WARMER"
Right on the heels of last year's amazing "WARM," Wilco frontman Jeff Tweedy is releasing his second album of new material strictly under his own name this weekend. With the first single "Family Ghost" taking on similar themes to last year's intensely personal record — which if you haven't heard it, drop this paper and go get it — expect this to be another amazing entry from one of the great living songwriters.

Frank Black — "Teenager of the Year"
Pixies frontman Frank Black — or Black Francis — has always had a pretty big shadow to outrun when it comes to releasing his own solo records. But his 1994 album "Teenager of the Year" is just as good as anything he ever released in Pixies glory days.

DEVO — "This is the Devo Box"
Is there another band that is so singular unto themselves than DEVO? Well, you could probably say "Weird" Al Yankovic. But, I digress. The legendary art-punks will be releasing their first 6 albums on Warner Brothers in a big box set for Record Store Day this year with each record pressed on different colors.

The Flaming Lips — "King's Mouth: Music and Songs"
The world's most fearless freaks The Flaming Lips will be releasing their brand new album "Kings Mouth: Music and Songs" on Record Store Day ahead of its wider release in July. Little is known about the album except that it will include 12 new songs with narration by the Clash's Mick Jones. The album will also be pressed on gold vinyl.

Weezer — "Dusty Gems and Raw Nuggets: The B-Sides"
While Weezer fans don't have to look very far for new material these days, fans of the older records — real fans — should be jumping for joy with this new compilation of B-sides from throughout their career. The set will include some of the band's lost non-album tracks as well as some early demos of some of their most beloved classics. And, all on blue vinyl to boot!

The Brazilian Court Hotel: old-Florida charm meets Palm Beach luxury

Old Florida charm meets Palm Beach luxury at The Brazilian Court Hotel, a four-star boutique property.

Perfect for a lovers' escape or even an intimate destination wedding, the hotel's ambiance drips with secret-garden-style romance. Think light Zen-like music playing in the background, mixed with the sounds of bubbling fountains throughout the meandering courtyards. It's a favorite hidden locale for celebrities because of the multiple entrances and discreet exits.

Wander through intricate courtyards, grand archways and immaculate grounds covered with tropical foliage and fragrant plants. It'll feel as if you're staying in a Palm Beach mansion, opposed to a crowded resort.

Relax on one of the elegant white chaise lounges and catch some rays in the garden. It's the ideal locale to sip a glass of rosé, dive into a good book, and spend a lazy day by the pool.

This Florida hotel, intimate and boutique, has a selection of 80 elegant rooms, including studios, one-, two- and three-bedroom suites. Appointed with lavish fabrics and mahogany millwork, rooms feature luxurious yet homey decor. And one of the best parts about this property – the hotel welcomes pampered pooches.

After a dip in the cool waters of the pool or the nearby ocean, get a full blow out and makeup application at the onsite Frédéric Fekkai Salon and Spa, offering a full range of luxury spa services. Many of the salon's top talents divide their time between New York and Palm Beach, servicing clientele in both locales. Salon and spa services include haircut and styling, coloring, manicure, pedicure, make-up application, massage, waxing, select spa treatments and select poolside and in-room beauty services.

When it's time for lunch, brunch or dinner, look to celebrity chef

Daniel Boulud's French-American restaurant located inside The Brazilian Court Hotel. One of Palm Beach's most highly acclaimed restaurants, Café Boulud's menu parallels that of an elite French bistro or popular New York eatery, with a touch of South Florida flair. Visit the lounge for cocktails, such as the white cosmopolitan (rumor has it that these are Michael Jordan's favorite) before dinner and ask to sit on the outdoor terrace, overlooking the lushly landscaped courtyard.

The hotel is conveniently situated within walking distance of both the beach and the highly coveted shops along Worth Avenue. Shop high-end brands like Tiffany & Co., Chanel and Louis Vuitton.

You'll also find local boutiques like Island Company, which exudes the ultimate coastal lifestyle with its colorful linen beachwear, whimsical accessories, delicious-smelling candles (even their custom-branded sunscreen smells good!) and vintage sunglasses. Shimmy up to the bar inside the store and enjoy a rum cocktail before you shop. A bonus: Island Company, as well as many of the shops on Worth Avenue, are also pet-friendly.

When you go...
The Brazilian Court Hotel is located at 301 Australian Avenue, Palm Beach, FL 33480. For more information and to book your reservation call 561-655-7740 or visit TheBrazilianCourt.com. KARA FRANKER

Keuchel still available for Mets, Yanks

The former Cy Young Award winner could bring a boost to both New York clubs.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Dallas Keuchel remains available on the free-agent market. GETTY IMAGES

Two weeks into Major League Baseball's 2019 regular season and former American League Cy Young Award winner Dallas Keuchel still remains unsigned. The 31-year-old headlines a remaining free-agent class that also includes closer Craig Kimbrel, the league's save leader since 2010.

Keuchel — along with his agent Scott Boras — has been unwilling to budge from his offseason demands of a five-year deal, which is likely the main reason as to why he still is on the market.

It's quite an investment for a team to make considering Keuchel has been inconsistent over the past five years since he's risen to prominence.

Since his Cy Young campaign in 2015 when he went 20-8 with a 2.48 ERA, Keuchel has had one season with a sub-3.00 ERA and two over 3.70, including 2016 when he posted a 4.55 ERA.

Injuries have played their fair share during those inconsistencies as he's battled shoulder and neck issues; another reason as to why teams would be cautious of giving him a contract until his age 36 season.

Regardless of those reservations, a number of teams around the league would benefit from picking up a talent like his.

Among eight teams listed as rosters that would benefit the most from picking up the former Houston Astro, MLB.com's Mark Fiensand listed both the Mets and Yankees as prime suitors.

The Yankees have been ravaged by the injury bug during the early portions of the 2019 season. While they await the return of CC Sabathia, ace Luis Severino is set to miss six-plus weeks with a lat strain.

It's forced the Yankees to start the likes of Domingo German and Jonathan Loaisiga as stopgaps for the time being.

German has performed admirably in the role, posting a 1.64 ERA in 11.0 innings of work over his past two starts. Loaisiga has struggled a bit more, allowing three runs on five hits in seven innings of work.

The Yankees signed veteran lefty Gio Gonzalez for depth purposes just prior to Opening Day, but Keuchel provides the Yankees with an ace-like arm when he's on his day. It will cushion the loss of Severino while providing a boost toward the top of the rotation alongside Masahiro Tanaka and JA Happ.

As for the Mets, questions still remain toward the bottom of the starting rotation in both their southpaws Steven Matz and Jason Vargas.

Vargas has received the brunt of the criticism after a dreadful start to this season after allowing six runs in six innings last week.

It abandoned all hope that he could build off his solid finish last season in which he posted a 2.62 ERA with 41 strikeouts in his final eight starts.

While Vargas is hanging onto the final spot in the Mets rotation by a thread, Steven Matz has put together a surprisingly nice start to his season. A 0.87 ERA over his first two starts could be slowly rekindling the idea that the Long Island native could still develop into that fourth big arm in the Mets pitching staff.

With the NL East stacked with powerful offenses, Keuchel would give the Mets the best rotation in the division by far to try and set down the likes of the Nationals, Braves, and Phillies.

Rangers can snag Kakko with No. 2 pick

The Rangers jumped up four spots in the draft lottery on Tuesday.

JOE PANTORNO

Kaapo Kakko is projected to go second overall to the Rangers. GETTY IMAGES

While the New York Rangers the Stanley Cup Playoffs from the couch for a second-straight year, they received a gift on Tuesday night at the 2019 NHL Draft Lottery in Toronto.

Entering the lottery at the sixth position, the Rangers won the second-overall pick of the draft this June.

The New Jersey Devils will select first overall for the second time in three years where they are expected to take 17-year-old phenom, Jack Hughes.

The Chicago Blackhawks, who entered the lottery at No. 12, jumped up nine spots to round out the top three.

For the Rangers, it is just the second time in franchise history that they will be picking second in the draft. They took Hall-of-Fame defenseman Brad Park with the No. 2 pick in the 1966 draft.

It's the perfect remedy for the rebuilding Blueshirts, who now have an opportunity to acquire a talented centerpiece for their youthful revolution.

While Hughes is likely guaranteed to be off the board, the Rangers will get quite a consolation prize in Finnish winger Kaapo Kakko.

The 18-year-old has spent the last year playing in Finland's top league (TPS) where he recorded 22 goals and 16 assists in 45 games.

He's also seen plenty of success on the international stage, winning gold medals with the Finnish National Team at both the U18 and U20 junior world championships.

Kakko is a forward that exhibits a rare blend of size (6-foot-2, 187 pounds), speed, and hockey IQ for a player his age. He handles the puck extremely well and has an ability to break down plays one step ahead of his opponents.

This is a kind of talent that can make an immediate jump to the NHL, which offers the promise of a talented, young line alongside Filip Chytil and Vitali Kravtsov.

REPEATED-DOSE INTRAVENOUS KETAMINE STUDY FOR PTSD

Approved 03/11/2019-03/09/2020 GCO # 15-0265

Have you experienced a life-threatening or traumatic event?

Since the trauma, have you:

- Had nightmares or flashbacks? Felt jumpy or anxious?
- Tried to avoid thinking or talking about it?
- Become less connected with people around you, or less interested in activities you used to enjoy?
- Blamed yourself for the trauma or what happened afterwards?

If so, you may be suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder or PTSD. The Mood and Anxiety Disorders Program at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai in New York City is conducting a study of repeated-dose ketamine.

Ketamine has been used for many years as an anesthetic medication, and at lower doses may help alleviate PTSD symptoms. You may be eligible to participate if you have PTSD and are 18-65 years old.

Participation involves a thorough psychiatric and medical screening. The study lasts for at least 4 weeks. You will be compensated for your time.
